

New Rash of Tornadoes Hits Southwest; 4 Oklahoma Dead

At Least 31 Strike in Area; Many Injured

Forecasters Hold Threat of More Twisters

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — At least 31 tornadoes swept across the storm-battered Southwest late Friday, killing four persons, injuring a countless number of others and destroying more than 200 homes and one school.

Several other persons were reported missing, and searchers feared the death toll would mount. Forecasters said the prevailing weather today holds a threat of two twisters over the five-state area of Texas, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Colorado and Kansas.

Lawton Hardest Hit

Friday's outbreak which followed a wave of tornadoes that struck the area earlier this week, was described by the U. S. Weather Bureau as one of the worst in a single day in years.

Hardest hit was the town of Lawton in southwest Oklahoma where all four recorded deaths occurred. Ten others were hurt, four seriously when three twisters rocketed through the small farming community almost simultaneously.

The new rash of twisters brought to at least 18 the number that have swept across the Southwest this week.

More than 50 persons were reported killed in an earlier siege on Monday and Tuesday.

Planes in Jeopardy

Friday's injured included several airborne persons. Pilot James Ruscoe and Stewardess Dianne Durham of Flushing, N. Y., received head and rib injuries when thrown about the cabin on a chartered C46 buffeted by a twister between Amarillo, Texas, and Tucumcari, New Mexico.

A plane carrying 39 soldiers had just skirted one tornado when it ran into the edge of another. None of the soldiers were injured.

Thirty homes were destroyed at Olton in the south plains country of Texas below the Panhandle. Fifteen homes suffered major damage and others minor damage. Ten persons were hurt in Olton.

Harrisburg Elks Ritual Team Third in State

Effingham First, Aurora Second; Scoring is Close

The Harrisburg Elks ritual team won third place in the state contest held Friday in connection with the state Elks convention at Springfield.

The scoring was so close for the first four teams that the Harrisburg group was pleased to have done so well, considering the fact that this is the first time in recent years a Harrisburg team has entered competition.

Marion Bradley, a member of the team who was required to return home Friday night because of his extra work load at the Western Insurance Adjustment Bureau, due to the recent storm, reported on the contest.

He said on a grading system of 100 points for perfect ritual, there was a point spread of only .2237 or less than one fourth of a point between the first four teams.

Effingham was first, Aurora second, Harrisburg third, Belleville fourth, Rock Island fifth, Pekin sixth and Rockford seventh. Teams entered the state contest by winning their district competitions.

In individual scoring, John Richard Small, exalted ruler of Harrisburg lodge, who occupied the chair of Leading Knight in the contest, and Floyd Jones as Inner Guard won first place for the state. Small also won first place in the district contest.

Members of the team are: Verner Joyner, Small, Owen Hunsinger Jr., Bradley, Richard Webb, Wayne Dixon and Jones.

Homer Fry of Aurora, state ritual chairman, stated in announcing the winner, that he believed any team in the contest was capable of winning any state contest in the United States, and for this reason, the contest was exceptionally hard to judge.

Heat Wave Kills 28 in Mexico

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Schools and most stores closed today in the face of a heat wave that has killed 28 children in four days.

Heat strokes have sent 300 other persons to hospitals and polio has struck 40 persons in the worst outbreak ever reported here.

Temperatures have ranged above 100 degrees for a week, following a drought that has dried up water sources in northern Mexico. The city is under strict water rationing and doctors said the children killed by the heat were virtually "dehydrated."

Water Situation In Harrisburg Near Normal

Despite showers this morning, the Harrisburg water situation was pretty near normal and all highways leading in and out of the city were open.

U. S. Route 45 north was the last of the three sandbagged roads to be restored to traffic. Vehicles started moving on this road at 3 p. m. Friday. Routes 34 north and 13 east were opened Friday morning.

An inspection of the town this morning showed nearly all the surface water was gone. There were a number of spots where water was standing, but it was shallow.

The pumps at the North Harrisburg and Pankey Branch pumping stations continued to send water out of the city.

Harrison Kibler reported that the Middle Fork stage outside the flood wall was 25.4 feet this morning, a fall of 1.16 feet since yesterday. Kibler had no record of how much rain had fallen here this morning because his gauge was submerged but a Galatia reading was .44 inch.

The Ohio river at Cairo rose 2.2 feet overnight to a stage of 41.7 today. A predicted 43-foot crest predicted for Monday may be revised.

Flood Pumps Started at Correct Time, Harrison Kibler Says

Says Earlier Use Would Have Permitted More Water in City

Harrison Kibler today estimated that there would have been from a foot to a foot and a half more water inside Harrisburg if the pumps had been turned on 12 hours earlier.

Kibler, who has had charge of the pumps in the Harrisburg flood protection system since the levee and pumping stations were built in 1939, answered some of the criticism which has been leveled at the city and individuals regarding starting of the pumps and to clear up some of the facts regarding the pumping operations.

Kibler has the responsibility in deciding when the pumps should be started and took sole responsibility for starting them at 6 p. m. Wednesday.

Flows Out Faster

Kibler said all four pumps—the two at the North Harrisburg station through which the West Harrisburg drainage ditch flows and the two at the Pankey Branch station east of town—have operated continuously since they were started. There had been gossip that the pumps were not on all of the time.

"The reason the pumps were not started twelve hours sooner," Kibler said, is that more water was flowing through the openings in the flood wall than could be pumped out if the pumping station gates were lowered and the pumps started."

He explained that water goes through the levee in a channel that is 20 feet wide and 11 feet deep and that pumps cannot begin to take that much water out when the water is flowing.

The gates are lowered and the pumps are started when the water on the outside reaches such a stage that the water on the inside cannot flow out. Gates must be lowered for pumping or the water pumped out will rush right back in.

Sole Responsibility

"If I had started the pumps 12 hours sooner," he stated, "I am confident we would have had a foot or a foot and a half more water in."

The Military Ghosts

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

No one would want to rob two old army campaigners, President Eisenhower and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, of the pleasure of tramping around the fabled Civil War battlefields at Gettysburg.

Nor could anyone really deny them the privilege of commenting, as professional soldiers, on the strategy and tactics used by the Union and Confederate commands in that tragic slaughter. But as they walked and talked, they seemed oddly unimpressed by the bitter irony of their little foray into the past. For the truth is that they and the kind of armies and tactics they knew in World War II are as out of date today as they appear to believe those of Generals George Meade and Robert E. Lee were in 1863.

Perhaps the quiet of the fields where Mr. Eisenhower and his British guest roamed was occasionally shattered by the roar of Air Force jets sweeping the skies. A few years ago one might have called that sound prophetic of tomorrow's warfare. Yet today it is almost obsolete itself.

In another war there will be no piston-engined aircraft such as did the strategic bombing and provided the air cover in the war like and Monty knew. Indeed, all piloted military aircraft may soon be outmoded. We are entering the age of the pilotless plane, the rocket, the long-range guided missile.

No more will generals have the luxury of time. Montgomery had to make massive preparations for attack, pulverizing enemy positions with artillery before he inched forward to new ground.

No more, indeed, will generals likely have the chance like he did to weigh and weigh the right moment to storm hostile beaches with a great water-borne force. In fact, most experts hazard that never again will there be a major landing from the sea by a mass army.

Electronics and nuclear energy are transforming warfare as other advances have done before. The generals who must fight it—and the whole world hopes they never do—may find it only a handicap to remember too much of World War II.

As men, Mr. Eisenhower and Marshal Montgomery are very much alive. But the two old generals who strode through the soft grass at Gettysburg were wandering in the pages of history only a few broad strides behind Generals Lee and Meade.

QUESTION:

Is it possible for me to buy an automobile insurance policy which will pay me a lifetime disability benefit as well as a death benefit to my dependents if I should be permanently disabled or killed in an automobile accident?

ANSWER:

Yes. Such a coverage has just recently been approved by the state of Illinois. It provides a combination of lifetime disability and death benefits not only while you are injured in an automobile, but also while you are a pedestrian in the event you are hit by an automobile. Also the cost of this type of coverage is very, very low.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Sen. Johnson Uses Meat-Ax On Modern Republican Bureaucrat; He Gives Senators One Day To Study 1,200 Pages Of Testimony; Johnson Makes Personal Issue Of Cutting Propaganda Budget.

WASHINGTON. — Texas' Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the astute and charming Democratic leader, has a persuasive way of putting his nose almost against another senator's, then telling him how much he loves him and how important it is to work together. Lyndon was debating on cutting the U. S. Information Agency budget last week.

Two huddles were especially significant. They were with Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts, who's been boomed as vice presidential running-mate with Lyndon in 1960; and Sen. Joe Clark of Pennsylvania, second Democratic mayor to be elected in Philadelphia since the Civil War.

Previously Clark and Kennedy had challenged Johnson's steamroller tactics in cutting the U. S. information budget. Johnson presided over the appropriations hearings on the U. S. Information Agency, printed some 1,200 pages of testimony, then expected his colleagues to read it and vote intelligently in less than 24 hours.

HOT INTERCHANGE
"The hearings comprise a book of 1,231 pages," complained Kennedy, "which became available to us on Monday."

"They became available this morning," interjected Senator Smith of New Jersey, referring to Wednesday.

"I would like to know how we could be expected to know very much about the subject," continued Kennedy.

"Are you questioning the judgment of the committee?" shot back Johnson. "If you'd been listening you might learn something."

"I have been here listening for three hours," replied Kennedy. The implication was that he had learned little from Johnson's speech. (Part of this exchange was later censored from the Congressional Record.)

Later Senator Clark expressed the same complaint.

"I made every endeavor, through the efforts of my staff yesterday, to get the committee report and the committee hearings, but I was unable to obtain them."

Johnson replied that Clark should have asked him direct. However, that is not the job of a senator. He is supposed to have hearings of important bills sent him automatically several days, if not a week, in advance in order to vote intelligently.

The truth is that the hearings were not printed until Monday night, were not delivered to Capitol Hill until Tuesday, and most senators did not see them until Wednesday morning. The day they were asked to vote.

"The fact that none of the senators have had time to read the many pages of testimony—to cut the heart out of an agency which is vital to the country's interests is almost irresponsible," complained Senator Case of New Jersey, Republican.

Later, Johnson was seen huddling with Democrats Clark and Kennedy. He told them, separately, this was a personal issue; that as chairman of the subcommittee which recommended gutting the U. S. Information Agency he must have their vote. He got 85.

Only one Democrat, Neuberger of Oregon, stood up to vote against the powerful, persuasive Democratic leader of the Senate.

THE TRUTH VS. LYNDON
What Johnson did not tell his colleagues was that he did not tell the truth in presenting his demand that the USIA budget be gutted.

On at least three very important points, Johnson deliberately misled fellow senators. They were:

1. He charged that the USIA was competing with American press associations, when two letters had been read in the hearings, from the Associated Press and the International News Service, stating this was not the case.

2. He charged that USIA had added 200 press employees, when actually it employed 200 Filipino and Lebanese printers and bookbinders to publish propaganda in Manila and Beirut.

3. Johnson accused USIA of spending $1,400 a week on a jazz band TV program in Mexico City, when actually three pilot shows only had been staged in Mexico City.

However, senators who had no chance to read the hearings had no way of knowing that Johnson was not telling the truth.

What Johnson did tell them, and told them eloquently, was that USIA was headed by Arthur Larson, the architect of "modern Republicanism." This, on Capitol Hill, is a dirty word.

Larson not only wrote the Eisenhower Bible on modern Republicanism, but foolishly delivered a speech on April 16 in Hawaii blasting the New Deal. A man who needs to get appropriations from a Democratic Congress doesn't make such a speech.

Result: Johnson tore him to pieces in committee hearings, scarcely let him testify, put politics ahead of propaganda and the importance it plays in the cold war. Larson was a poor witness in the first place, but when Johnson finished he was a disgrace.

Then Johnson cut almost 30 per cent of the USIA budget request and demanded that the Senate vote on this before any senator could possibly read the hearings. In contrast, Rep. John Rooney, Brooklyn Democrat, held 11 days of careful hearings, stuck to propaganda problems, not politics, pruned so judiciously that the USIA can still function with his recommended $105,000,000.

With Johnson's cut — down to $89,000,000 — some of the most important U. S. propaganda in the cold war will be eliminated just as Russia is stepping up its cold-war budget.

MODERN VS. OLD GUARD GOP

Bill Knowland of California, the experienced Republican Senate leader, was debating freshman Dick Neuberger, the Oregon Democrat, at the recent Indianapolis Gridiron Club dinner. Knowland chided Neuberger on the fact that the Democratic party was split while there was no split among Republicans.

"Right," replied Neuberger. "There is no split among the Republicans. They're all against liberal legislation."

"The only difference between modern Republicans and old guard Republicans is that old guard Republicans both speak and vote against liberal legislation, while modern Republicans only vote against it."

4-H News

The Junior Homemakers 4-H club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of the leader, Mrs. Louie Gaskins. This was the first meeting of the new year and the leader explained the different projects available.

Eight Expelled From College

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—Two more students were expelled from Bowling Green State University Friday night, bringing to eight the number ousted from school as ringleaders of a riot by more than 1,500 students.

University President Ralph McDonald said four more students will be expelled as soon as they can be notified.

McDonald said the riot early Friday stemmed from "planned" demonstration against disciplinary action expected to be taken against the Sigma Chi and Delta Tau Delta fraternity chapters. Both were charged with violating university drinking regulations.

The uprising began as a torchlight parade by some 300 students then grew to an unruly mob of 3,000, according to university officials.

At the peak of the disturbance, students built a bonfire on U. S. 6, tying up traffic for blocks. They also turned a hose on firemen and burned McDonald in effigy.

When the students heard that three of their number had been jailed for inciting a riot, they marched on the jail. Police turned them back with tear gas.

DUPO, Ill. (AP)—Illinois state troopers raided a tavern here Friday and arrested the owner, Grady Beason, and five others for gambling.

The state police, led by Patrol Captain Elza Brentley, said Beason will be charged with possession of gambling devices. The others were fined $25 and costs. Police found two slot machines, a portable dice table, a poker table and three punch boards.

Charge Ex-Cuban President Financed Revolutionary Group

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban Interior Minister Santiago Rey charged today that former President Carlos Prío Socarras, now living in Miami, financed and engineered an "invasion" of Cuba Friday by a 25-man revolutionary group.

The army reported it captured two of the 25, Lazaro Guerra and Armando Garcia. The navy seized the yacht Corintia, which landed the revolutionaries on the coast of revolt-ridden Oriente province near the town of Mayari.

Army headquarters said in a communique that one of the captured men said the landing party left Miami May 19.

Gasoline Fumes Scare at Herrin

HERRIN, Ill. (AP)—More tests will be run today in a gasoline fumes scare at Herrin.

Fire Chief Carl Mayers said the fumes are clearing up. They were traced Friday to the Martin service station on Park Avenue where a leak was found in a line from a storage tank to a pump. Raw gasoline was leaking into the sanitary sewer system.

The leak has been shut off and the storage tanks are being drained. Meanwhile, the station has been closed.

Tests made Friday showed explosive fumes four feet above some manholes. Mayers said the danger of an above-ground explosion is now over.

Sewer lines are being flushed with a fire hose.

Streets around the station which were blocked Friday have been reopened.

The leak was discovered after an explosion occurred in the basement of the Elks Lodge across the street from the service station Thursday night. There were no injuries.

Fear Chinese Riots May Hurt Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some congressmen feared today that the sacking of the U. S. embassy in Nationalist China may hurt President Eisenhower's foreign aid bill.

Rep. John Vorys (R-Ohio), a key member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he expects opponents of foreign aid to cite the Formosa developments during House floor debate on the aid bill.

Vorys spoke out sharply in criticism of Chinese mobs which stormed the embassy Friday in protest against the acquittal of a U. S. soldier in the death of a Chinese laborer.

"It makes me pretty hot," Vorys said. "I think they'd better get their shirts on and show a little understanding."

The incident raised other congressional temperatures and brought demands affecting other aspects of American foreign policy. Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va.) insisted the Army consider bringing home some of its troops stationed in 72 countries around the world.

Robertson said the Formosa incident squared with other reports that friction is developing steadily in foreign countries where "we would ordinarily look for friendship" because of U. S. aid.

Rep. Frank Bow (R-Ohio) said he will try to attach a rider to the foreign aid bill to do away with the status of forces agreement with other nations. Under such agreements U. S. troops can be tried in foreign courts for off-duty offenses committed away from the base.

Bow said he has written to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles asking if the United States is conducting negotiations for a status of forces agreement with Nationalist China, as reported in press dispatches. If so, he said, he would demand the negotiations be broken off.

Pumps Started at

Best Time: Kibler

town. I have the sole responsibility on deciding when that time comes and I am taking the responsibility for starting the pumps at 6 p. m. Wednesday.

He said that after the pumps were started the water stayed at the same point on the gauge inside the levee for 14 hours before it started going down.

Mr. Kibler explained that the two pumps at the North Harrisburg station pump out 42,000 gallons of water per minute each and the two at Pankey Branch pump out 32,000 gallons per minute each, making a total of 8,880,000 gallons of water being pumped out of the city each hour.

Mr. Kibler said the situation all boiled down to the fact that Harrisburg had an unprecedented nine and a half inch rain in 36 hours and that the flood protection system was not designed to take care of so much rainfall in such a short period.

Must Use Own Judgment
"Those in charge of the pumps must use their judgment as to when the flow outward stops, then close the gates to prevent water from the outside coming inside the levee," he stated. "When the gates are closed, the pumps are started."

"The levee and pump system does not guarantee against high water inside the city, but it does prevent flood waters of catastrophic proportion, such as in 1937. "It is possible, in event of heavy, continuous rainfall after the gates have been closed, for water to rise within the levee faster than it can be pumped out. But, in such event, water outside the levee would be much higher, and therefore the levee and pump system is still of tremendous benefit."

About Town And Country

cheery words can lift a heavy load. "Be obedient, a good listener, clean in habit and in talk. Pick subjects who are most interested in and get all you can out of them. "Always face the world square shouldered, chin up and looking straight ahead. Be a real man. "Remember, always, the Golden Rule, and abide by it. Don't forget the Ten Commandments. They're still in effect and always will be. "Your Loving Mother."

FLOOD FODDER: With water running about knee deep over the highway out east of town, a lot of carp were running over the road along with the water. Some fellows were out there in hip boots stopping the journey of some of them with pitchforks.

The Rare Adventure

by BERNARD FERGUSON

clothes. Presently he came and sat beside Allan at the tiller. "No doubt you are wondering why I am with you. Are you going to be busy, or will you be sitting still and sailing like this?"

"If my mother had caught us, we should have been through a great deal by this time, I can assure you," said Georges dryly. "My mother is not a waster of time when she is angry. And by now she is probably even more angry than when you last saw her. And you made her very angry."

There was a short pause. "My mother told you a good deal about our history," said Georges. "Her only brother was put in prison by the French for sedition. He died in prison, and my mother has always believed that they murdered him. Ever since we were small boys she has taught us to look on the French as our hereditary enemies. She sent us to school in France to learn French, and to families in England to learn English. That was partly so as to know the ways of the world, but above all to learn the ways and weaknesses of the French, so that when the time came we should be wise enough to outwit them, and yet be able to make Seknou a modern state when our family was once more reigning here."

"Why didn't she get in touch with my family?" asked Allan. "Because of the quarrel. When your ancestor the Duke refused to help Al Merhametiz, Al Merhametiz swore that no approach should ever again be made to your branch of the family, but that if your branch of the family ever approached ours, that would be different."

"Then we heard that you had arrived in Tunis. My mother sent Camille to sail to see whether you had arrived there, and he found your names in the book at the hotel, and rang up Jules to say that you were on the bus; and then he saw you for the first time on the ferry."

"We saw him too, and wondered who he was..."

"And then later we heard that you had ordered a pair of shoes in the souk at Seknou. Camille did not want you to know that he was watching you, so he went and sat at the back of the shoemaker's shop when you were expected to call to collect them. He wanted to see you. He was very embarrassed when you noticed that there was someone there, and offered him a cigarette and spoke to him in Arabic."

"I remember," said Allan. "And then he managed to persuade you to go to Areg el Kebir—he didn't dare suggest Clusium, because he was afraid that Captain Billon might forbid it. It was arranged that Camille would meet you there and bring you on to Clusium. And then it all went wrong, because that old Paleologue interfered. My mother beat Camille when he came back and said what had happened."

"Beat him?"

"Yes; she hit him many times on both sides of his face." "I see," said Allan. "What you've been saying explains a lot to me. In fact, it explains pretty well everything. Except why you are coming with me."

The Rare Adventure

by BERNARD FERGUSON

clothes. Presently he came and sat beside Allan at the tiller. "No doubt you are wondering why I am with you. Are you going to be busy, or will you be sitting still and sailing like this?"

"If my mother had caught us, we should have been through a great deal by this time. I can assure you," said Georges dryly. "My mother is not a waster of time when she is angry. And by now she is probably even more angry than when you last saw her. And you made her very angry."

There was a short pause.

"My mother told you a good deal about our history," said Georges. "Her only brother was put in prison by the French for sedition. He died in prison, and my mother has always believed that they murdered him. Ever since we were small boys she has taught us to look on the French as our hereditary enemies. She sent us to school in France to learn French, and to families in England to learn English. That was partly so as to know the ways of the world, but above all to learn the ways and weaknesses of the French, so that when the time came we should be wise enough to outwit them, and yet be able to make Seknou a modern state when our family was once more reigning here."

"Why didn't she get in touch with my family?" asked Allan.

"Because of the quarrel. When your ancestor the Duke refused to help Al Merhametiz, Al Merhametiz swore that no approach should ever again be made to your branch of the family, but that if your branch of the family ever approached ours, that would be different."

"Then we heard that you had arrived in Tunis. My mother sent Camille to Nait to see whether you had arrived there, and he found your names in the book at the hotel, and rang up Jules to say that you were on the bus; and then he saw you for the first time on the ferry."

"We saw him too, and wondered who he was."

"And then later we heard that you had ordered a pair of shoes in the souk at Seknou. Camille did not want you to know that he was watching you, so he went and sat at the back of the shoemaker's shop when you were expected to call to collect them. He wanted to see you. He was very embarrassed when you noticed that there was someone there, and offered him a cigaret and spoke to him in Arabic."

"I remember," said Allan.

"And then he managed to persuade you to go to Areg el Kebir—he didn't dare suggest Clusium, because he was afraid that Captain Billon might forbid it. It was arranged that Camille would meet you there and bring you to Clusium. And then it all went wrong, because that old Paleologue interfered. My mother beat Camille when he came back and said what had happened."

"Beat him?"

"Yes; she hit him many times on both sides of his face."

"I see," said Allan. "What you've been saying explains a lot to me. In fact, it explains pretty well everything. Except why you are coming with me."

WHITE KNIGHT

GOLD CUP

ROYAL TRIO! 1958 ALL-AMERICA ROSE WINNERS — The highest honor in Rose-dom, the All-America Rose Selections Award goes to three brilliant newcomers to the rose world. These three new roses will rule as the Queens of the horticultural world throughout 1958. The epitome of hybridizing science, the three new roses are: WHITE KNIGHT, a magnificent white Hybrid Tea; FUSILIER, a brilliant orange-red Floribunda; and GOLD CUP, a stunning golden-yellow Floribunda. The finest of the new rose introductions of the world, these three varieties were singled out for the highest honors in America after passing exhaustive tests for two years in twenty-five trial gardens located in various parts of the United States. These roses "Oscars" are the best of thousands upon thousands of seedlings grown both here and abroad. These three new masterpieces of the flower world are the product of more than six years of intensive effort by the world's best hybridizers. They are a fitting addition to the regal line of winners of the All-America Rose Selections Award.

Sorghums More Profitable on Drouthy Soils

URBANA—Hybrid grain sorghums may make this crop more profitable than corn on drouthy soils in Illinois, says C. N. Hittle, University of Illinois agronomist.

In Illinois, however, it is unlikely that the crop will dry to the 13 percent safe moisture level in the field. Hittle says that any farmer planning to grow a lot of grain sorghum should own or be able to use an artificial dryer.

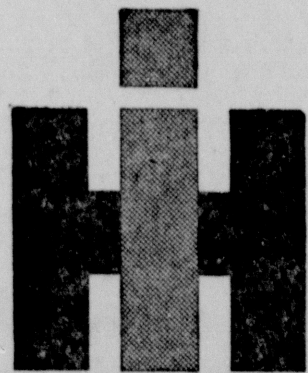

Hittle, in cooperation with J. W. Pendleton and G. E. McKibben of the University of Illinois and H. L. Portz, Southern Illinois University, have prepared a new circular, "Grain Sorghums in Illinois." It covers seed and seed treatment, cultivation and fertilization, harvesting, feeding value varieties and yields of grain sorghums.

The publication, Circular 774, is now available free from your county farm adviser or the University of Illinois College of Agriculture at Urbana.

Brighter Prospect For Egg Producers

Egg prices may increase substantially this summer and fall, a University of Illinois poultry marketing specialist reported this week.

James R. Roush points out that hatchings of chicks for egg production during January, February and March are one-fourth below last year. Eggs in incubators on April 1 were 18 percent below 1956.

On the basis of past trends, Roush says we can expect the pullets produced this year to lay 2 to 4 percent more eggs per layer. But even this increase in rate of lay will not offset the drop in number of layers.

However, certain factors may hold up the egg supply and put a damper on the egg price rise. Roush points out that many eggs stored during the low-priced period this spring will be pushed onto the market this fall. This will add to the supply and hold down the price rise for fresh eggs.

Present storage stocks of shell eggs have jumped 95 percent above last year in 10 principal markets. Frozen egg stocks have risen 20 percent.

Many producers may also decide to hold over some of this year's layers for another year if prices rise substantially. This would also hold up supply and hold down prices.

But looking over the whole egg picture, Roush feels that there are stronger forces to push egg prices up than down in the next six to nine months.

Trucks parked for any length of time in Glacier National Park need protection with wire fences because porcupines love the taste of synthetic rubber tires.

Milk Composition Protected by Law

Enforcement of standards of composition protects Mrs. Consumer from getting watered-down or partially skimmed milk sold as whole milk.

Illinois state law prohibits this fraudulent practice, insures the nutritive value of milk and makes sure the consumer gets what she pays for, according to P. H. Tracy, University of Illinois dairy technologist.

In Illinois whole milk must have at least 3 percent butterfat and 8.5 percent solids-not-fat—like calcium, milk sugars and protein—for a total of at least 11.5 percent total milk solids.

Skimmed milk doesn't have any cream, but contains about 9 percent total milk solids.

Half-and-half must contain not less than 10.5 percent milk fat; light cream, 18 percent; whipping cream, 30 percent; and cultured sour cream, 18 percent.

Many of the other milk product standards are similar to the federal definitions and standards of identity, Tracy adds. "Standards of identity" apply to products in interstate commerce and are enforced under the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

Interstate distribution of milk, cream or skimmed milk combined with fat or oil other than milk fat—so as to resemble or imitate milk in any form—is prohibited by the Federal Filled Milk Act of 1923.

Eggs of the kiwi have a 75-day incubation period and the male bird does the setting.

Dixon Springs

DIXON SPRINGS—More than normal January and February rainfall plus heavy rains so far in April have left the most subsoil moisture at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station since the winter of 1951-52.

W. R. Boggess, forest research specialist at the Station, reports that the soil is wet or moist to a depth of five or six feet. Ground water wells on the Lake Glendale watershed are filled to capacity.

Slightly more than three inches of rain fell during the storm period of January 20-22, Boggess reports. Another three inches was recorded during the April 3-4 storm, although some locations in the area recorded much more than that. Heavy runoff has filled farm ponds in the area.

This favorable outlook at the beginning of the growing season, from the standpoints of both ground water and stored surface water, can change rapidly with a few weeks of dry weather, Boggess points out. In hot, dry weather growing plants rapidly use the available moisture stored in the soil.

It is always helpful to start with plenty of subsoil moisture. But good crop yields still depend on ample rainfall well distributed throughout the growing season on the relatively shallow upland soils of southern Illinois.

Pointers on Using Nitrogen Fertilizer

The largest and most consistent benefits from applying nitrogen on corn have usually occurred on Mellow-textured silt loam soils that have been depleted because of inadequate rotation or poor soil treatment. L. B. Miller, University of Illinois agronomist, reports that more than 1,100 tests on 12 Illinois soil experiment fields during the past 14 years show that response of corn to nitrogen depends on soil type, crop rotation, previous soil treatment and weather conditions.

A yield increase of 27 bushels an acre has been obtained on Muscatine silt loam at the McNabb field by using nitrogen. The five-year average yield was 86 bushels an acre compared with 59 bushels when no nitrogen was added on the corn-corn-oats-wheat rotation.

When a legume catch crop was seeded in the oats and wheat, average corn yield was 86 bushels without nitrogen and 95 bushels with nitrogen.

At Carlinville, corn yields on a rotation of corn-soybeans-wheat-mixed hay on Harrison silt loam have averaged 48 bushels an acre without treatment. Nitrogen fertilizer has given an average yield increase of 14 bushels, but in different years yields have varied from 0 to 50 bushels an acre. On plots receiving lime, phosphate and potash, corn averaged 88 bushels an acre. Use of nitrogen increased yields another 5 bushels.

Various kinds of nitrogen have proved about equally effective for corn, Miller points out. Side-dressing has usually given the best returns per pound of nitrogen, but takes more time and labor.

Most profitable treatment is usually 40 to 60 pounds of nitrogen an acre on land that normally yields 70 to 85 bushels. On depleted land that may yield only 40 to 50 bushels, it may pay it use 800 to 1000 pounds of nitrogen, Miller suggests.

However, using nitrogen is seldom profitable if potash, phosphate or lime is critically deficient, he concludes.

BRAVE WORDS

That's my daughter Ellen standing up there in her cap and gown. Valedictorian of her class! I'd be a strange mother if I didn't feel a lump in my throat, and a tremendous surge of pride.

It just doesn't seem possible that my Ellen is grown-up. Like any mother, I have visions of a tiny baby... a little girl in pigtails... a child, beginning school.

And now here she is, speaking about the future that she and her classmates envision... the things they are going to try to do... their hopes and dreams.

They are brave words, all of them... brave dreams. And like all parents, I pray that most of them will come true. But I know that in times of failure, my Ellen will have an added strength because of her Faith, and her devotion to the Church.

How glad, how thankful, I am for that!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

way. "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."
CONCLUSION — A young man came forward at the invitation at the close of a service recently. "Why did you come to accept Christ?" asked the pastor. "It was not because of your preaching, sir," replied the young man, "but because of my mother's practiced Christianity in our home." Perhaps if more parents practiced Christianity, the pastor's sermons would bear better fruit.
Isaac lived that kind of a life before God daily. Because he did, God blessed him and made it possible for Isaac to make friends of his enemies. Isaac was a peacemaker. Are you?
